

The North Adams Transcript.

VOLUME 1.

NORTH ADAMS, MASS., FRIDAY AFTERNOON, FEBRUARY 21, 1896.

NUMBER 231

The Transcript.

OFFICE:
TRANSCRIPT BUILDING, BANK STREET,
NORTH ADAMS, MASS.

Transcript Publishing Company
PUBLISHERS AND PROPRIETORS.

DAILY TRANSCRIPT.

Issued every afternoon (except Sundays)
at 3 o'clock.
Subscription Rates.—One year, $6.00; six months, $3.50; three months, $2.00; one month, $1.00. In advance only.
Advertising Rates.—For information about advertising call at or address Business Office of THE TRANSCRIPT.

WEEKLY TRANSCRIPT.

One Dollar a Year; strictly in advance.
Issued every Thursday morning.
A valuable advertising medium, especially desirable for country trade.

TELEPHONE CALLS.
Editorial Rooms, 230-231.
Business Office, 232.

TELEGRAPHIC SERVICE.

Telegrams received by Western Union wire up to 10 p.m.

It is hoped that the Transcript will be of service to the community in many ways. It is the only newspaper in Western Massachusetts that publishes the full text of the reports of the various committees of the State Legislature. It is also the only paper in the State that publishes the full text of the reports of the various committees of the State Legislature. It is also the only paper in the State that publishes the full text of the reports of the various committees of the State Legislature.

E. E. VADNAIS, D. D. S.

Dental Parlors.

77 Main street. Office hours 10 a.m. to 12 p.m. and 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. Gold filling a specialty.

SIMMONS & CARPENTER.

Paraphrasing Undertakers.

No. 101, Eagle St., North Adams, Mass.

JOHN E. MAGENIS.

Attorney & Counselor.

At Law Office, Adams Block, Main street, North Adams.

C. T. PHELPS.

Attorney and Counselor.

At Law Office, Adams Block, Main street, North Adams.

DR. ANNE M. BLOSSOM.

Physician and Surgeon.

Church place. Office hours 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and 7 p.m. to 10 p.m.

B. W. NILES.

Attorney and Counselor.

At Law Office, Adams Block, Main street, North Adams.

EDWIN T. BARLOW, B. S.

Architect.

Office in Adams Block, Main street, North Adams.

W. G. PARKER.

Practical Chemist.

Light, heat and general repairs. Model and experimental work. Bicycle repairs. Rear Adams Block, Main street.

C. W. WRIGHT, M.D.

Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat.

New Bank Block, Main street. Attending Eye and Ear, Nose and Throat. Also attending at Central London Eye Hospital, also at Central London Eye Hospital, also at Central London Eye Hospital.

J. M. FLAGG.

Livery, Saddle and Boarding Stable.

Main street, opposite the Wilson House, North Adams. Nice coaches for weddings, parties and funerals. First class single horses and carriages at reasonable terms. Also village coach to and from all trains. Telephone connection.

S. VADNER & BROTHER.

Carriage and Wagon Builders.

Main street, opposite the Wilson House, North Adams. Nice coaches for weddings, parties and funerals. First class single horses and carriages at reasonable terms. Also village coach to and from all trains. Telephone connection.

NORTH ADAMS SAVINGS BANK.

Established 1872. 77 Main street, adjoining Adams Block. Business hours 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday till 3 p.m.

PRESIDENT—V. A. CROUGHTON.

TREASURER—V. A. WHITAKER.

Vice-Presidents:

William Burton, G. L. Rice, W. H. Gaylord.

Trustees:

A. C. Houghton, C. H. Cutting, William Burton, V. A. Whitaker, George L. Rice, W. H. Gaylord, B. W. Niles, J. M. Flagg, H. T. Cady, Arthur Robinson, J. N. L. Milner.

and of the Executive:

George L. Rice, W. H. Gaylord, A. B. Wright.

FINANCIAL.

[Special Dispatch to the Transcript.]

New York Market.

Close quotations 3 p.m.

Received through the office of A. M. Tinker, 77 Main street, North Adams. Executives order for stocks and bonds, cash upon New York stock exchange on basis of margin. Private telegrams.

American Cotton Oil 117.34

London 117.15

American Tobacco 84.15

B. & O. 117.15

Canada Southern 71

Central of New York 117.15

Chicago & North Western 117.15

Chicago & Western 117.15

Chicago & Western 117.15

Chicago & Western 117.15

Chicago & Western 117.15

Chicago & Western 117.15

Chicago & Western 117.15

Chicago & Western 117.15

Chicago & Western 117.15

Chicago & Western 117.15

Chicago & Western 117.15

Chicago & Western 117.15

By Telegraph

3.00 O'CLOCK.

FIRST IN 20 YEARS.

Boston Has a Hanging Today, and Little Alice Sterling's Murder is Avenged.

DOOMED MAN'S IRON NERVE.

ONE OF THE MOST BRUTAL CRIMES ON RECORD. SCENES AT THE SCAFFOLD THIS MORNING.

[Special dispatch to the Transcript.]

Boston, Feb. 21.—Angus D. Gilbert, the murderer of Alice, the eight-year-old daughter of George N. Sterling of Dorchester, was hanged at the Charles street jail at 10.49 this morning.

Gilbert retired at 10.30 o'clock last night and quickly fell asleep. This morning the officer who stood guard over him during the night said he did not once stir, and when he awoke at 6.25 this morning he was in a cheerful mood. He donned the new suit of clothes provided for him by Sheriff O'Brien, and after completing his toilet was given a shave. He ate heartily of a breakfast of dropped eggs on toast and a cup of strong tea, and made a few pleasant comments about the morning to the officer present.

After breakfast and all preparations of dressing Gilbert showed remarkable nerve.

He read the morning papers as usual and appeared much interested in articles published in reference to himself. At 8.30 he was visited by Rev. Mr. Clarke, the missionary, and some minutes later his sister Jennie, who has been his constant visitor since his incarceration, arrived and remained with the condemned man for some time.

At 9.30 spectators holding invitations began to arrive and by 10.15 seats were well filled. To the right of the scaffold seats were arranged for the medical fraternity. The twelve legal witnesses to the execution were seated in the center of the rotunda and directly in front of the scaffold.

At 9.30 Gilbert was taken from his cell to the sheriff's parlors where he was greeted by his sister, Rev. B. C. Clarke, Rev. F. A. Fairfield of Brockton, and a few jail officials. The service lasted nearly an hour during which there was a prayer and reading of passages from the Bible by Rev. Mr. Fairfield. The prisoner and his sister sat together during the service and the latter was much affected.

At 10.30 Sheriff O'Brien called on Gilbert and told him he was ready. Both the brother and sister were clasped in each other's arms. But the condemned man kept his nerve throughout. The devoted and loving sister then took her farewell kiss and with sorrow in her heart left the room and the prisoner to the mercy of his God. At 10.30 o'clock Sheriff O'Brien mounted the platform of the scaffold and announced that he desired any spectators present who did not wish to remain to leave at once. No one responded and the sheriff further asked the newspaper men not to sketch any of the officers while they were performing their unpleasant duty on the scaffold.

The stolid demeanor that has characterized Gilbert since his arrest he maintained until the end. It was plainly evident to those present when the doomed man entered the rotunda in which the scaffold was erected that he would keep his promise and die like a man. As he crossed the threshold he bowed in recognition to one of the jail officials stationed at the door and with unflinching step he approached the flight of stairs leading to the platform and the trap. Unassisted he climbed them and immediately walked to the trap on which was placed a chair. He sat down as unconcerned as though he was to be presented to the gallows.

The straps were adjusted by the deputy sheriffs when followed the reading of the death warrant. During the reading Jailer Brady was adjusting the rope about Gilbert's neck and the black cap over his head. The doomed man apparently never moved a muscle. Only a slight pallor lit up his face. The rope about his neck evidently bothered him but he calmly looked down to show those present that he was not nervous. The cap and rope being adjusted he was requested to stand up which he did.

Sheriff O'Brien spoke the fatal ending of the death sentence: "Hanged by the neck until you are dead, and may God have mercy on your soul," and then pressed his foot on the spring and the man swung in air. It was in the presence of about 250 persons. The murderer was pronounced dead by the physicians in 30 minutes after the trap fell. The neck was broken and death was painless. The execution was a very successful one from beginning to end.

As the first hanging in Boston in twenty years the execution created much attention, and more than ordinary interest was attached to it. It was carried out on a gallows over a half century old, and upon which there has been five previous executions. Gilbert's sister will take charge of the body, but what disposition will be made of it is unknown.

Story of Gilbert's Crime.

The crime for which Gilbert was convicted, was, without doubt, one of the most brutal ever committed in the state of Massachusetts. It was for the horrible outrage and then murdering little eight-year-old Alice Sterling, a bright and loving child, the sunshine of her parents' home.

On April 10, 1895, little Alice disappeared from her home very mysteriously. Mrs. Sterling had been away for the afternoon, but returned home in time to prepare the evening meal. All of the children were present except Alice. Little was thought of this as it was thought that she might possibly be at some of the neighbors.

When Alice had not returned by 7 o'clock her parents became alarmed and visited several of the neighbors where Alice was in the habit of going to play. No one had seen her, however. Then began a most thorough search of the surrounding country, in which a great crowd assisted, and strange to relate, Gilbert was one of the most assiduous in looking for the little girl. From what transpired later, Gilbert's actions during the search were those of one of the coolest men ever known.

The police were notified, and a large detail was put to work on the case. After a day's work by officers of station 9, with practically no clew being found, detectives from the central office were put on the case. They met with little success for nearly two days. At last it became necessary to make a house to house canvass of the entire district, and it was not until this was done that any clew was found that gave even the slightest hope of ultimate success.

During this canvass over 1000 houses were visited. Out of this lot one woman was found who had seen Alice with Gilbert, about 2 o'clock on the day she so mysteriously disappeared. Then came one of the hardest work the Boston detectives have ever done. It was hard for anyone to believe that Gilbert had any connection with the case. He had been for some time assistant ticket agent at the little suburban station of Atlantic, and had always borne a spotless reputation, at least that was what everybody in that part of the city said.

The detectives investigated Gilbert very carefully. They were not long in finding out that the young man for years had been leading practically a double life. Gilbert lived with a family about half a mile from the station and in return for his board did chores around the house. He had a neat room fitted up over the stable. A careful examination of this room was made, but it brought out no new facts.

A search was started of the stable and it was in the basement of this place that the body of little Alice was found buried, face down, with but a slight covering of her clothes, they having been badly torn in her struggle for life.

A hatchet had been used in murdering the girl, her head and face being beaten into an unrecognizable mass. The post mortem examination revealed the fact that Alice had been brutally outraged, the coroner's report stating facts of the most outrageous character. A later examination of Gilbert's room disclosed a suit of underclothes stained with blood, and this fastened the crime on him without any possible doubt.

The police finally got a partial confession from Gilbert. He said that while going down into the cellar he had stumbled over the dead body. He said that he became frightened for fear that he might be accused of the murder and had buried her mutilated remains. For three whole days after doing this Gilbert went about his work as usual. He was one of the foremost in the search for little Alice, and being a close friend of the family was often in consultation with both the father and the mother in regard to the case. But he kept the terrible truth to himself and his guilt did not seem to have any effect upon him.

Gilbert's trial was long drawn out. His counsel tried to prove insanity. The jury took an hour and a quarter to find a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree, and on Dec. 14 Gilbert was sentenced to be hanged.

VERY IMPORTANT ACTION.

A 'Greater New York' Now Seams Probable as New York Legislature's Action Indicates.

[Special Dispatch to the Transcript.]

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 21.—The question of "Greater New York" was decided in the affirmative today by the sub-committee of the committee on cities of the two houses, when the report and bill of Senator Lexow was adopted. All the members of the committee sign the report except two. The bill as reported by Senator Lexow only takes in New York, Brooklyn, Long Island City, Richmond County and the town of Newton in to the greater city.

Sheriff O'Brien spoke the fatal ending of the death sentence: "Hanged by the neck until you are dead, and may God have mercy on your soul," and then pressed his foot on the spring and the man swung in air. It was in the presence of about 250 persons. The murderer was pronounced dead by the physicians in 30 minutes after the trap fell. The neck was broken and death was painless. The execution was a very successful one from beginning to end.

As the first hanging in Boston in twenty years the execution created much attention, and more than ordinary interest was attached to it. It was carried out on a gallows over a half century old, and upon which there has been five previous executions. Gilbert's sister will take charge of the body, but what disposition will be made of it is unknown.

Story of Gilbert's Crime.

The crime for which Gilbert was convicted, was, without doubt, one of the most brutal ever committed in the state of Massachusetts. It was for the horrible outrage and then murdering little eight-year-old Alice Sterling, a bright and loving child, the sunshine of her parents' home.

On April 10, 1895, little Alice disappeared from her home very mysteriously. Mrs. Sterling had been away for the afternoon, but returned home in time to prepare the evening meal. All of the children were present except Alice. Little was thought of this as it was thought that she might possibly be at some of the neighbors.

When Alice had not returned by 7 o'clock her parents became alarmed and visited several of the neighbors where Alice was in the habit of going to play. No one had seen her, however. Then began a most thorough search of the surrounding country, in which a great crowd assisted, and strange to relate, Gilbert was one of the most assiduous in looking for the little girl. From what transpired later, Gilbert's actions during the search were those of one of the coolest men ever known.

The police were notified, and a large detail was put to work on the case. After a day's work by officers of station 9, with practically no clew being found, detectives from the central office were put on the case. They met with little success for nearly two days. At last it became necessary to make a house to house canvass of the entire district, and it was not until this was done that any clew was found that gave even the slightest hope of ultimate success.

During this canvass over 1000 houses were visited. Out of this lot one woman was found who had seen Alice with Gilbert, about 2 o'clock on the day she so mysteriously disappeared. Then came one of the hardest work the Boston detectives have ever done. It was hard for anyone to believe that Gilbert had any connection with the case. He had been for some time assistant ticket agent at the little suburban station of Atlantic, and had always borne a spotless reputation, at least that was what everybody in that part of the city said.

The detectives investigated Gilbert very carefully. They were not long in finding out that the young man for years had been leading practically a double life. Gilbert lived with a family about half a mile from the station and in return for his board did chores around the house. He had a neat room fitted up over the stable. A careful examination of this room was made, but it brought out no new facts.

A search was started of the stable and it was in the basement of this place that the body of little Alice was found buried, face down, with but a slight covering of her clothes, they having been badly torn in her struggle for life.

A hatchet had been used in murdering the girl, her head and face being beaten into an unrecognizable mass. The post mortem examination revealed the fact that Alice had been brutally outraged, the coroner's report stating facts of the most outrageous character. A later examination of Gilbert's room disclosed a suit of underclothes stained with blood, and this fastened the crime on him without any possible doubt.

The police finally got a partial confession from Gilbert. He said that while going down into the cellar he had stumbled over the dead body. He said that he became frightened for fear that he might be accused of the murder and had buried her mutilated remains. For three whole days after doing this Gilbert went about his work as usual. He was one of the foremost in the search for little Alice, and being a close friend of the family was often in consultation with both the father and the mother in regard to the case. But he kept the terrible truth to himself and his guilt did not seem to have any effect upon him.

Gilbert's trial was long drawn out. His counsel tried to prove insanity. The jury took an hour and a quarter to find a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree, and on Dec. 14 Gilbert was sentenced to be hanged.

VERY IMPORTANT ACTION.

A 'Greater New York' Now Seams Probable as New York Legislature's Action Indicates.

[Special Dispatch to the Transcript.]

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 21.—The question of "Greater New York" was decided in the affirmative today by the sub-committee of the committee on cities of the two houses, when the report and bill of Senator Lexow was adopted. All the members of the committee sign the report except two. The bill as reported by Senator Lexow only takes in New York, Brooklyn, Long Island City, Richmond County and the town of Newton in to the greater city.

Sheriff O'Brien spoke the fatal ending of the death sentence: "Hanged by the neck until you are dead, and may God have mercy on your soul," and then pressed his foot on the spring and the man swung in air. It was in the presence of about 250 persons. The murderer was pronounced dead by the physicians in 30 minutes after the trap fell. The neck was broken and death was painless. The execution was a very successful one from beginning to end.

As the first hanging in Boston in twenty years the execution created much attention, and more than ordinary interest was attached to it. It was carried out on a gallows over a half century old, and upon which there has been five previous executions. Gilbert's sister will take charge of the body, but what disposition will be made of it is unknown.

Story of Gilbert's Crime.

The crime for which Gilbert was convicted, was, without doubt, one of the most brutal ever committed in the state of Massachusetts. It was for the horrible outrage and then murdering little eight-year-old Alice Sterling, a bright and loving child, the sunshine of her parents' home.

On April 10, 1895, little Alice disappeared from her home very mysteriously. Mrs. Sterling had been away for the afternoon, but returned home in time to prepare the evening meal. All of the children were present except Alice. Little was thought of this as it was thought that she might possibly be at some of the neighbors.

When Alice had not returned by 7 o'clock her parents became alarmed and visited several of the neighbors where Alice was in the habit of going to play. No one had seen her, however. Then began a most thorough search of the surrounding country, in which a great crowd assisted, and strange to relate, Gilbert was one of the most assiduous in looking for the little girl. From what transpired later, Gilbert's actions during the search were those of one of the coolest men ever known.

The police were notified, and a large detail was put to work on the case. After a day's work by officers of station 9, with practically no clew being found, detectives from the central office were put on the case. They met with little success for nearly two days. At last it became necessary to make a house to house canvass of the entire district, and it was not until this was done that any clew was found that gave even the slightest hope of ultimate success.

During this canvass over 1000 houses were visited. Out of this lot one woman was found who had seen Alice with Gilbert, about 2 o'clock on the day she so mysteriously disappeared. Then came one of the hardest work the Boston detectives have ever done. It was hard for anyone to believe that Gilbert had any connection with the case. He had been for some time assistant ticket agent at the little suburban station of Atlantic, and had always borne a spotless reputation, at least that was what everybody in that part of the city said.

The detectives investigated Gilbert very carefully. They were not long in finding out that the young man for years had been leading practically a double life. Gilbert lived with a family about half a mile from the station and in return for his board did chores around the house. He had a neat room fitted up over the stable. A careful examination of this room was made, but it brought out no new facts.

A search was started of the stable and it was in the basement of this place that the body of little Alice was found buried, face down, with but a slight covering of her clothes, they having been badly torn in her struggle for life.

A hatchet had been used in murdering the girl, her head and face being beaten into an unrecognizable mass. The post mortem examination revealed the fact that Alice had been brutally outraged, the coroner's report stating facts of the most outrageous character. A later examination of Gilbert's room disclosed a suit of underclothes stained with blood, and this fastened the crime on him without any possible doubt.

The police finally got a partial confession from Gilbert. He said that while going down into the cellar he had stumbled over the dead body. He said that he became frightened for fear that he might be accused of the murder and had buried her mutilated remains. For three whole days after doing this Gilbert went about his work as usual. He was one of the foremost in the search for little Alice, and being a close friend of the family was often in consultation with both the father and the mother in regard to the case. But he kept the terrible truth to himself and his guilt did not seem to have any effect upon him.

Gilbert's trial was long drawn out. His counsel tried to prove insanity. The jury took an hour and a quarter to find a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree, and on Dec. 14 Gilbert was sentenced to be hanged.

VERY IMPORTANT ACTION.

A 'Greater New York' Now Seams Probable as New York Legislature's Action Indicates.

[Special Dispatch to the Transcript.]

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 21.—The question of "Greater New York" was decided in the affirmative today by the sub-committee of the committee on cities of the two houses, when the report and bill of Senator Lexow was adopted. All the members of the committee sign the report except two. The bill as reported by Senator Lexow only takes in New York, Brooklyn, Long Island City, Richmond County and the town of Newton in to the greater city.

Sheriff O'Brien spoke the fatal ending of the death sentence: "Hanged by the neck until you are dead, and may God have mercy on your soul," and then pressed his foot on the spring and the man swung in air. It was in the presence of about 250 persons. The murderer was pronounced dead by the physicians in 30 minutes after the trap fell. The neck was broken and death was painless. The execution was a very successful one from beginning to end.

As the first hanging in Boston in twenty years the execution created much attention, and more than ordinary interest was attached to it. It was carried out on a gallows over a half century old, and upon which there has been five previous executions. Gilbert's sister will take charge of the body, but what disposition will be made of it is unknown.

Story of Gilbert's Crime.

The crime for which Gilbert was convicted, was, without doubt, one of the most brutal ever committed in the state of Massachusetts. It was for the horrible outrage and then murdering little eight-year-old Alice Sterling, a bright and loving child, the sunshine of her parents' home.

On April 10, 1895, little Alice disappeared from her home very mysteriously. Mrs. Sterling had been away for the afternoon, but returned home in time to prepare the evening meal. All of the children were present except Alice. Little was thought of this as it was thought that she might possibly be at some of the neighbors.

When Alice had not returned by 7 o'clock her parents became alarmed and visited several of the neighbors where Alice was in the habit of going to play. No one had seen her, however. Then began a most thorough search of the surrounding country, in which a great crowd assisted, and strange to relate, Gilbert was one of the most assiduous in looking for the little girl. From what transpired later, Gilbert's actions during the search were those of one of the coolest men ever known.

The police were notified, and a large detail was put to work on the case. After a day's work by officers of station 9, with practically no clew being found, detectives from the central office were put on the case. They met with little success for nearly two days. At last it became necessary to make a house to house canvass of the entire district, and it was not until this was done that any clew was found that gave even the slightest hope of ultimate success.

During this canvass over 1000 houses were visited. Out of this lot one woman was found who had seen Alice with Gilbert, about 2 o'clock on the day she so mysteriously disappeared. Then came one of the hardest work the Boston detectives have ever done. It was hard for anyone to believe that Gilbert had any connection with the case. He had been for some time assistant ticket agent at the little suburban station of Atlantic, and had always borne a spotless reputation, at least that was what everybody in that part of the city said.

The detectives investigated Gilbert very carefully. They were not long in finding out that the young man for years had been leading practically a double life. Gilbert lived with a family about half a mile from the station and in return for his board did chores around the house. He had a neat room fitted up over the stable. A careful examination of this room was made, but it brought out no new facts.

A search was started of the stable and it was in the basement of this place that the body of little Alice was found buried, face down, with but a slight covering of her clothes, they having been badly torn in her struggle for life.

A hatchet had been used in murdering the girl, her head and face being beaten into an unrecognizable mass. The post mortem examination revealed the fact that Alice had been brutally outraged, the coroner's report stating facts of the most outrageous character. A later examination of Gilbert's room disclosed a suit of underclothes stained with blood, and this fastened the crime on him without any possible doubt.

The police finally got a partial confession from Gilbert. He said that while going down into the cellar he had stumbled over the dead body. He said that he became frightened for fear that he might be accused of the murder and had buried her mutilated remains. For three whole days after doing this Gilbert went about his work as usual. He was one of the foremost in the search for little Alice, and being a close friend of the family was often in consultation with both the father and the mother in regard to the case. But he kept the terrible truth to himself and his guilt did not seem to have any effect upon him.

Gilbert's trial was long drawn out. His counsel tried to prove insanity. The jury took an hour and a quarter to find a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree, and on Dec. 14 Gilbert was sentenced to be hanged.

VERY IMPORTANT ACTION.

By Telegraph

5.00 O'CLOCK.

THEY ARE LATE.

The Big Prize Fight Cannot Begin Before 5.30 Eastern Time.

IT MAY OCCUR TOMORROW.

RING PITCHED IN MEXICAN TERRITORY JUST ACROSS THE RIO GRANDE. FIGHTERS ON THEIR WAY.

[Special Dispatch to the Transcript.]

EL PASO, Tex., Feb. 21.—If the big fight comes off today it will be late. The "fight" train on the Southern Pacific is reported two hours late when within a hundred miles of Langtry on the Mexican border near where the fight is to take place.

The train which left here last night is now expected to arrive there at 2.35, an hour later than calculated.

It is thought that the cars containing Fitzsimmons and Maher will be sent out either from Langtry, or two small stations within fifteen miles of there.

The party will cross the Rio Grande into the Mexican state of Coahuila, and the ring will be pitched at the foot of Mosquito mountain, a very inaccessible region to Mexican troops.

TABER, Feb. 21.—The "fight" train has just passed here two hours late, due at Langtry at 3.30 now Denver time, or 5.30 eastern time. It is thought extremely doubtful whether arrangements can be perfected to pull off the fight before dark, in which case it will be postponed until early tomorrow morning. The party is in good spirits.

[LATER.]

Reduction Sale.

We shall make a special low price on some Staple goods in our over stocked lines.

Note the Prices.
New Kitchen Clocks, 8 day,

$3.50, FORMER PRICE $5.00.

Sterling Silver Tea Spoons,
$3.50 per Set of 6, former price $5.00. Engraved Free.

Wm. Roger's Tea Spoons,
$1.00 per Set.

12 dwt. Rodger's Knives and Forks,
$3.00 per Dozen.

L. M. BARNES,
5 Wilson Block.

When you buy—

D. & H.

All Rail Coal
it means that you will have

More Heat,
Less Waste,
Less Labor and Smaller Bills

than if you buy the product of other mines.

The purchase of our Bale of our Shavings will convince you that they are the cheapest and best means of Bedding your horse or cow.

T. W. Richmond & Co.,

31 STATE STREET

HARVEY A. GALLUP
BUYS,
SELLS
and EXCHANGES

Real Estate

Boland Block, N. Adams.

They all say so.

Mr. Darius Smith, druggist, 330 Mulberry street, Syracuse, N. Y., says: "I know of many cases where

Smith's Eye Water

Has been of great benefit, among them a prominent clergyman. It gives satisfaction and is a good seller. It has a yellow wrapper with large eye on top.

ALL DRUGGISTS. 25 CENTS.

The City

CASH

GROCERY

Has no books, no book-keeper and no clerks out soliciting orders. My prices are my salesmen and my goods are sold on a small margin from the wholesale price. Goods delivered.

F. E. BENSON,
Cor. Main and Marshall Sts.

LATE BUYERS

will still find a

Good Assortment of

Watches,
Clocks,
Opera Glasses,
Sterling Silver,
Solid Gold Jewelry.

Special prices will be quoted on certain articles to sell them quickly.

L. W. WHITE,

JEWELER,

...80 MAIN STREET.

NOTICE TO SIDE WALK ABUTTERS.

Side Walk Abutters will take notice that all violations of Section 18 of the B-Laws of this City in reference to removing snow and ice from the side walk in front of their premises will be punished as said by-law provides.

W. G. CADY,
JAN. E. BUCKNER,
GEO. W. CHACE,
City of North Adams, 1898.

SUBURBAN NEWS.

Happenings of Interest in Our Neighbor Towns.

AT ADAMS TODAY.

Loaded Sleigh Tipped Over.
About 2 o'clock Thursday Adams Brothers truck sleigh, loaded with cotton tipped over near St. Charles church on Park street and a runaway was narrowly averted by the promptitude of John Trumble and Martin Dwyer who happened to be near by, in stopping the horse. Mr. St. John, the driver, went over with the load but, fortunately, was not injured to any extent.

Father Ryan to Preach.
Rev. Father Ryan, the New York Paulist father, who gave the temperance lecture at North Adams Sunday night, will preach the regular Lenten service in St. Charles church tonight. Father Ryan is a very eloquent preacher and his hearers tonight should be many. There will be besides, benediction and stations of the cross.

William Dunn.
William Dunn, an old and respected Savoy farmer, who formerly lived here and is well known to Adams people, died Thursday after an illness of several weeks. Mr. Dunn was born in Ireland seventy-six years ago and has lived in this country many years, the largest part of the time in this vicinity. He was a happy, jovial old fellow, and is mourned by dozens of friends. He leaves several sons and daughters, among them Miss Maggie Dunn of this town. The funeral will occur from St. Charles church at 10 o'clock Saturday morning. Interment will be in Adams.

Paid $100 Fine.
Patrick Shea of Cheshire was in court this morning charged with selling liquor illegally. He pleaded not guilty and was discharged. His bartender, William C. Sanderson, pleaded guilty to a similar charge and paid a fine of $100.

To Build a Large Store-house.

A record has been filed of a real estate conveyance by W. C. Plunkett & Sons to the Berkshire Cotton company. The record does not state the location of the property, but it is supposed to be in the neighborhood of the Berkshire mills, and will be the site of a large store-house which it is known will be built as soon as the frost is out of the ground. There is great urgency for such a store-house, as the Berkshire company has thousands of dollars worth of baled cotton stored on the first floor of the big new mill, and it must be moved as soon as it becomes necessary to set up machinery in that part of the building. The building has been spoken of to contractors and they are figuring on it.

The foremen of James Stewart & Co. together with Superintendent Skene enjoyed a sleighride to the Hoosac Valley hotel in Cheshire Thursday evening.

The seven boilers for the new Berkshire mill are standing on the mill grounds as the foundation in the new boiler house is not yet finished. L. A. Weston will set them up as soon as the place is ready to receive them.

The concert at Zylonia chapel Thursday evening by the North Adams Congregational choir had a good attendance from this end of the town.

A three-seated sleigh was used Thursday to convey the electric car passengers from the point where the break was Thursday to the end of the line. Today the track is clear.

James T. Baker entertained about a dozen friends at his home on Depot street Thursday evening.

Miss Margaret Broderick has returned to her home in Hudson, N. Y., after a pleasant visit with Miss Nellie McNulty. Mrs. Charles Hawthorn entertained the Thursday Afternoon Reading club this week. Miss F. A. Richmond read selections from Washington Irving, Chateaugay, and Mrs. W. B. Orr told of the current literary events.

Corinthian chapter, F. and A. M. met Thursday evening.

Jimmy Sullivan of Renfrew has a very sore hand as the result of a bruise sustained some time ago and for the time being out of it. It has festered and swollen considerably and Wednesday afternoon was cut by Dr. H. B. Holmes.

A. B. Daniels and Charles E. Legate are in New York on business.

Mrs. Henry Burke of New Bedford, who has been visiting at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Martin, returned to her home Thursday.

The Newport, R. I., baseball club has acceded to the terms of Pitcher Peter McBride of this town, but he has not yet signed with the nine as he has several other good offers.

Mrs. Glover and daughter of Springfield, who were guests of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Roberts, returned home Thursday.

On account of the meeting of the teachers' association Wednesday evening, the meeting of the Young Men's Literary and Debating club has been postponed a week.

The Adams Co-operative bank has issued its constitution and by-laws in book form for the use of its stockholders. The bank will begin doing business by the first of the new month.

Manager Hicks has bought a new green and red reversible baize stage carpet for the opera house. It arrived this morning.

Special cars will run to North Adams after tonight's presentation of "Sowing the Seed."

A son was born this morning to Mr. and Mrs. John P. Doyle.

A son was born Thursday to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Dykowsky of Commercial street.

Miss Allen, of the New York Conservatory of Music, who is to take charge of the concert for St. Charles church fund, St. Patrick's night, will be in town over Sunday as Rev. Fr. Moran's guest.

WILLIAMSTOWN.

A party from North Adams stopped at Mr. J. Crocker's Wednesday evening and had a long year dinner.

Edgar Noel has brought home his wife from the Albany hospital much improved in health.

Guisey Brigham who has been quite ill is much better and is out of the house again.

Delor Bennett aged 26, died at the Station at a little after noon Thursday. He consider it the strongest argument that has ever been presented against giving the ballot.

WINTER CONVENTION

Continued from First Page.

The signs of the times indicate that this right of franchise is coming to women in the near future. How often we hear the remark even from those who do not particularly favor it,—"It is surely coming."

Now is not this a pretty sure sign that it is a just movement? No one will predict that a wrong movement is sometimes coming. The fact of its coming slowly is another argument to prove its justice.

A sign of its increasing strength is the opposition that has suddenly arisen. It shows that the opponents are becoming aroused.

Opposition always helps a just cause, because it serves to attract the attention of the public and thus leads to investigation of both sides of the subject. Many who have investigated this question, although formerly opposed to it, have come gradually to believe in it. I hope we may all fortify ourselves against the temptations the ballot seems to have had for the men. If we are to purify politics we must handle the ballot intelligently, conscientiously and unselfishly.

Again, I most cordially welcome the friends of reform to our pleasant city of North Adams, and sincerely hope that this convention will prove a blessing to us all.

The response was made as follows by Mrs. Anna Torrey of Williamstown, president of the union.

It is with pleasure that in behalf of the Berkshire county W. C. T. U., I respond to these cheering and cordial words of welcome. It was not necessary that these words be spoken in order that we might know we were welcome. We were quite sure of it when you invited us to hold this convention here. We have also been made to feel at home by your kind and hearty greetings as you have individually met us these we are glad to be told in these words, that we were welcome. We may know that our friend will be glad to see us when we call, but a hearty "glad to see you" from her always helps to brighten our faces and set aside any doubts that we may have called at an inconvenient hour. We are glad we have come here at this convenient hour.

I suspect that our sisters in North Adams are just a little proud of a certain matter, and accordingly do not mind if we see it also. When the Fitchburg railroad yards were moved to Williamstown it was said that North Adams was then only a way station between Boston and Williamstown.

And of course, we in Williamstown felt a little puffed up thereby, and when the electric cars were said to be coming to our town it only added to our haughtiness, for then North Adams would be just a stopping place between Adams and Williamstown. Alas! great was the fall of our self pride. North Adams has become a city and we are only too glad to tell our friends that we live in the suburbs of the city of North Adams. Yes, sisters, we are very glad to be welcomed to this new city of Northern Berkshire, the second city in our county. We will not blame you if you are a little proud. It is justifiable.

These words of welcome from North Adams, so kindly spoken, start us on our day's work with bright faces and cheerful hearts which we believe will last us all the day. We are sure we are going to have a good time, but we have met here for other purpose than simply a good time. There are serious matters to be taken into consideration today. It does not all depend upon the speakers, whose names you see on your programs. What they may say, will be of little use if we do not, as we go home, think, consider and practice what we hear today.

There is one thought I wish to especially call to your minds, one which weighs much upon my mind, and of which I have spoken before. We all have reason to be proud of our county union and of the work it has done and is doing. Yes, proud but not satisfied. We realize that true growth is not alone marked by numbers, yet we must not slight the numerical growth. Are we doing all we can to increase the membership of our unions? We hear very favorable reports from some of our unions in this line, but the desire of my heart is that we may organize new unions in our county. Organization is the watch-word just now. Miss Wellard and her helpers are in the South organizing the work there. Who will go to the south of our county and establish new unions there these several towns, as yet unorganized? You ask if the northern portion is all taken. No, there is work here as well. There is work everywhere.

Let me just name the towns in our county without a W. C. T. U.: Florida, Clarkburg, Cheshire, Hancock, New Ashford, Windsor, Peru, Bellet, Lenox, Adams, Richmond, Stockbridge, Monterey, Sheffield, Tyringham, Washington, Sheffield and Mt. Washington. Now if we believe that a W. C. T. U. is a good thing for us and our towns, why do we not carry the idea to our neighboring sisters? I know we would all like this to be done, but the how of the matter is what troubles us to answer. I drop these seed thoughts thus early in the convention, hoping that before the day is over, we may together answer this question in a practical way.

This is the special question which I wish you to consider. Other speakers this day will bring you new thoughts, or old thoughts in new dress. It behooves me to set the example not to trespass upon another's time. So on behalf of the fourteen unions which now comprise the Berkshire county W. C. T. U., I thank you for your cordial welcome, and hope by the next time we come to your pleasant city we shall come with increased numbers, delegates representing thirty-two unions. A union in every town in Berkshire,—pass the word along!

The report of the county secretary, Miss Elsie Hathaway of Adams, was very satisfactory and showed, besides a constant increase in membership, an increase in the work accomplished.

Miss Millicent Ford of Williamstown read a paper on "The New Social Life" and Miss Maria A. Howland of Adams gave a talk on "The Lord's Portion." An hour of devotional exercises followed and Mrs. Emma L. Allen of Williamstown contributed remarks. Mrs. H. C. Grant of Pittsfield spoke at the noonday prayer service. An open parliament conducted by Mrs. Julia Seed of Pittsfield next occupied the attention of the meeting. The Blackinton.

All departments at the mill are at work and it seems like old times to see everybody busy.

Exercises in honor of Washington's birthday are held in our schools today.

A vocal society has been formed in town with David Chapman leader and instructor.

A large force of Fitchburg railroad bridgemen are at work on the bridge over the woolen company's railway laying new timbers and strengthening the bridge.

Richard Davis, a boy employed in the twisting room, had a finger badly smashed Tuesday while at work.

The Ladies' Temperance Aid held their first meeting Thursday evening to prepare for their Easter sale.

POKNAU.

The ten-cent supper in the Baptist parlors last evening was well attended and an unusually large sum realized. An extremely elaborate supper was served which was quite out of proportion to the sum asked for it. The affair reflects great credit on the ladies in charge, Mrs. Bates, Nibs and Dunn.

The logs are rolling in rapidly from the mountain now that such fine sleighing has come.

A Baptist fair is being arranged for to take place in March.

We are pleased to notice that Mrs. J. A. Barker is again convalescent.

Miss Cora Pratt was in town yesterday visiting her aunt.

Mrs. Homer Bushnell of North Adams is the guest of Mrs. A. W. Hall.

Mrs. Paul Wollschlaeger will soon enter Wright's mill.

Our local hay dealer, E. J. Grady, is taking advantage of the fine sleighing and is taking some large loads of hay to the city. He had over two and one-quarter tons of hay on one sleigh.

Note the Averages.

The bureau of statistics of the treasury department enables us to show how we have been capturing the markets of the world. Here are our exports of American products and manufactures for six years, 1890 to 1895:

Exports of American Products. Value.
1890.....$45,867,711
1891.....49,382,531
1892.....62,357,215
1893.....64,757,171
1894.....95,044,097
1895.....107,312,110
Free trade average.....807,543,993
During the four years of McKinley protection we captured foreign markets worth, on an average, $920,324,087 a year. During the two Democratic years our captures were worth only $507,543,993 a year. The breach in the wall of protection cost us $121,780,000 in each year of 1894 and 1895. The sooner the wall is repaired the less costly it will be to us.

Congressman Gamble's Idea.

Restore again the policy of the Republican party and reverse the balance of trade in our favor and the effect will be, as it always has been heretofore, to stop the outflow of gold from our shores and bring to us instead the yellow metal sufficient to make good the balance of trade in our favor. The real seat of the present trouble is largely if not wholly due to a false economic policy insisted upon by the opposition in the face of overwhelming facts as well as the logic of the present unfortunate condition of our national well being.—Hon. Robert J. Gamble.

Free Wool and Carpets.

We hear very little about the carpet trade nowadays from the New York Times. "That from trade sheet used to be continually explaining what a 'good thing' it was for our carpet manufacturers to sell carpets in England. Since the English manufacturers have been selling more of their carpets in the American market under our free wool policy The Times has been very silent. The 'good thing' is over on the other side now. But why not tell us about it?"

"Education" and "Exaltation."

Undoubtedly it has been a liberal education and a visible exaltation for the Democratic party to have accepted the political guidance of Grover Cleveland for these eight years.—New York Times, June 24, 1892.

"Undoubtedly it has been a liberal education." Undoubtedly. But how about the "visible exaltation" for the Democratic party?" Is it out of sight?

WINTER CONVENTION

Continued from First Page.

consider it the strongest argument that has ever been presented against giving the ballot.

The signs of the times indicate that this right of franchise is coming to women in the near future. How often we hear the remark even from those who do not particularly favor it,—"It is surely coming."

Now is not this a pretty sure sign that it is a just movement? No one will predict that a wrong movement is sometimes coming. The fact of its coming slowly is another argument to prove its justice.

A sign of its increasing strength is the opposition that has suddenly arisen. It shows that the opponents are becoming aroused.

Opposition always helps a just cause, because it serves to attract the attention of the public and thus leads to investigation of both sides of the subject. Many who have investigated this question, although formerly opposed to it, have come gradually to believe in it. I hope we may all fortify ourselves against the temptations the ballot seems to have had for the men. If we are to purify politics we must handle the ballot intelligently, conscientiously and unselfishly.

Again, I most cordially welcome the friends of reform to our pleasant city of North Adams, and sincerely hope that this convention will prove a blessing to us all.

The response was made as follows by Mrs. Anna Torrey of Williamstown, president of the union.

It is with pleasure that in behalf of the Berkshire county W. C. T. U., I respond to these cheering and cordial words of welcome. It was not necessary that these words be spoken in order that we might know we were welcome. We were quite sure of it when you invited us to hold this convention here. We have also been made to feel at home by your kind and hearty greetings as you have individually met us these we are glad to be told in these words, that we were welcome. We may know that our friend will be glad to see us when we call, but a hearty "glad to see you" from her always helps to brighten our faces and set aside any doubts that we may have called at an inconvenient hour. We are glad we have come here at this convenient hour.

I suspect that our sisters in North Adams are just a little proud of a certain matter, and accordingly do not mind if we see it also. When the Fitchburg railroad yards were moved to Williamstown it was said that North Adams was then only a way station between Boston and Williamstown.

And of course, we in Williamstown felt a little puffed up thereby, and when the electric cars were said to be coming to our town it only added to our haughtiness, for then North Adams would be just a stopping place between Adams and Williamstown. Alas! great was the fall of our self pride. North Adams has become a city and we are only too glad to tell our friends that we live in the suburbs of the city of North Adams. Yes, sisters, we are very glad to be welcomed to this new city of Northern Berkshire, the second city in our county. We will not blame you if you are a little proud. It is justifiable.

These words of welcome from North Adams, so kindly spoken, start us on our day's work with bright faces and cheerful hearts which we believe will last us all the day. We are sure we are going to have a good time, but we have met here for other purpose than simply a good time. There are serious matters to be taken into consideration today. It does not all depend upon the speakers, whose names you see on your programs. What they may say, will be of little use if we do not, as we go home, think, consider and practice what we hear today.

There is one thought I wish to especially call to your minds, one which weighs much upon my mind, and of which I have spoken before. We all have reason to be proud of our county union and of the work it has done and is doing. Yes, proud but not satisfied. We realize that true growth is not alone marked by numbers, yet we must not slight the numerical growth. Are we doing all we can to increase the membership of our unions? We hear very favorable reports from some of our unions in this line, but the desire of my heart is that we may organize new unions in our county. Organization is the watch-word just now. Miss Wellard and her helpers are in the South organizing the work there. Who will go to the south of our county and establish new unions there these several towns, as yet unorganized? You ask if the northern portion is all taken. No, there is work here as well. There is work everywhere.

Let me just name the towns in our county without a W. C. T. U.: Florida, Clarkburg, Cheshire, Hancock, New Ashford, Windsor, Peru, Bellet, Lenox, Adams, Richmond, Stockbridge, Monterey, Sheffield, Tyringham, Washington, Sheffield and Mt. Washington. Now if we believe that a W. C. T. U. is a good thing for us and our towns, why do we not carry the idea to our neighboring sisters? I know we would all like this to be done, but the how of the matter is what troubles us to answer. I drop these seed thoughts thus early in the convention, hoping that before the day is over, we may together answer this question in a practical way.

This is the special question which I wish you to consider. Other speakers this day will bring you new thoughts, or old thoughts in new dress. It behooves me to set the example not to trespass upon another's time. So on behalf of the fourteen unions which now comprise the Berkshire county W. C. T. U., I thank you for your cordial welcome, and hope by the next time we come to your pleasant city we shall come with increased numbers, delegates representing thirty-two unions. A union in every town in Berkshire,—pass the word along!

The report of the county secretary, Miss Elsie Hathaway of Adams, was very satisfactory and showed, besides a constant increase in membership, an increase in the work accomplished.

Miss Millicent Ford of Williamstown read a paper on "The New Social Life" and Miss Maria A. Howland of Adams gave a talk on "The Lord's Portion." An hour of devotional exercises followed and Mrs. Emma L. Allen of Williamstown contributed remarks. Mrs. H. C. Grant of Pittsfield spoke at the noonday prayer service. An open parliament conducted by Mrs. Julia Seed of Pittsfield next occupied the attention of the meeting. The Blackinton.

All departments at the mill are at work and it seems like old times to see everybody busy.

Exercises in honor of Washington's birthday are held in our schools today.

A vocal society has been formed in town with David Chapman leader and instructor.

A large force of Fitchburg railroad bridgemen are at work on the bridge over the woolen company's railway laying new timbers and strengthening the bridge.

Richard Davis, a boy employed in the twisting room, had a finger badly smashed Tuesday while at work.

The Ladies' Temperance Aid held their first meeting Thursday evening to prepare for their Easter sale.

POKNAU.

The ten-cent supper in the Baptist parlors last evening was well attended and an unusually large sum realized. An extremely elaborate supper was served which was quite out of proportion to the sum asked for it. The affair reflects great credit on the ladies in charge, Mrs. Bates, Nibs and Dunn.

The logs are rolling in rapidly from the mountain now that such fine sleighing has come.

A Baptist fair is being arranged for to take place in March.

We are pleased to notice that Mrs. J. A. Barker is again convalescent.

Miss Cora Pratt was in town yesterday visiting her aunt.

Mrs. Homer Bushnell of North Adams is the guest of Mrs. A. W. Hall.

Mrs. Paul Wollschlaeger will soon enter Wright's mill.

Our local hay dealer, E. J. Grady, is taking advantage of the fine sleighing and is taking some large loads of hay to the city. He had over two and one-quarter tons of hay on one sleigh.

Note the Averages.

The bureau of statistics of the treasury department enables us to show how we have been capturing the markets of the world. Here are our exports of American products and manufactures for six years, 1890 to 1895:

Exports of American Products. Value.
1890.....$45,867,711
1891.....49,382,531
1892.....62,357,215
1893.....64,757,171
1894.....95,044,097
1895.....107,312,110
Free trade average.....807,543,993
During the four years of McKinley protection we captured foreign markets worth, on an average, $920,324,087 a year. During the two Democratic years our captures were worth only $507,543,993 a year. The breach in the wall of protection cost us $121,780,000 in each year of 1894 and 1895. The sooner the wall is repaired the less costly it will be to us.

Congressman Gamble's Idea.

Restore again the policy of the Republican party and reverse the balance of trade in our favor and the effect will be, as it always has been heretofore, to stop the outflow of gold from our shores and bring to us instead the yellow metal sufficient to make good the balance of trade in our favor. The real seat of the present trouble is largely if not wholly due to a false economic policy insisted upon by the opposition in the face of overwhelming facts as well as the logic of the present unfortunate condition of our national well being.—Hon. Robert J. Gamble.

Free Wool and Carpets.

We hear very little about the carpet trade nowadays from the New York Times. "That from trade sheet used to be continually explaining what a 'good thing' it was for our carpet manufacturers to sell carpets in England. Since the English manufacturers have been selling more of their carpets in the American market under our free wool policy The Times has been very silent. The 'good thing' is over on the other side now. But why not tell us about it?"

"Education" and "Exaltation."

Undoubtedly it has been a liberal education and a visible exaltation for the Democratic party to have accepted the political guidance of Grover Cleveland for these eight years.—New York Times, June 24, 1892.

"Undoubtedly it has been a liberal education." Undoubtedly. But how about the "visible exaltation" for the Democratic party?" Is it out of sight?

WINTER CONVENTION

Continued from First Page.

consider it the strongest argument that has ever been presented against giving the ballot.

The signs of the times indicate that this right of franchise is coming to women in the near future. How often we hear the remark even from those who do not particularly favor it,—" all of the gold offered for the recently is- Huntington did to cure herself of being

"Took physics and consulted the family physician, but all to no avail. The disorder to be nervous, racked about, put on great resolution and made twice pills and found myself no worse than before."
 —New Orleans Times-Democrat.

A Good Word For Tobacco.

The Lunenburg has arrived at Halifax from Labrador with the now somewhat famous Italian scholar Donella, which was picked up by a prize crew of American fishermen, in tow.

General Baratieri, commander of the Italian forces in Africa, reports that in the recent skirmishes with the Shoonas, the Italian losses were 10 killed, including two officers, and 50 wounded.

Sir Philip Currie, the present British ambassador at Constantinople, will succeed the Marquis of Dufferin, the present British ambassador at Paris, upon the latter's impending retirement.

Consolidated bills extending the operation of the mineral land laws to the north half of the Colville Indian reservation in Washington, and to to the location of mining claims.

IN THE DEEP SEA.

Robert Louis Stevenson Tells of the Forms of Life Found There.

The letters written from Samoa by Robert Louis Stevenson and published in St. Nicholas. Following is an extract from one:

I read the other day something that I thought would interest so great a sea bather as you. You know that the fishes that we see and catch go only a certain way down into the sea. Below a certain depth there is no life at all. The water is as empty as the air is above a certain height. Even the shells and dead fishes that come down there are crushed into nothing by the huge weights of the water. Lower still, in the places where the sea is profoundly deep, it appears that life begins again. But the life is not what we know. It is loose rays and tatters of creatures that hang together all right down there with the great weight holding them in one, but register and vote in the city elections without paying taxes. According to the story, he has kept this up for years and makes no secret of it.—Macon (Ga.) Telegraph.

The Municipal society of London has in its museum, 1, Fisher street, near Red Lion square, a curious collection of the varied devices resorted to by the begging fraternity of that vast city to excite sympathy and extract coin from the pockets of the charitably disposed.

LIGHT AND AIRY.

The Secret of Happiness.

There's no excuse for family jars; 'Tis selfishness our pleasure mars. The wife insists on this or that; The husband dotes on his capote— A little, foolish falling out— Some words, some tears, a little put, Because they have not learned to share Each other's will and wishes near.

My wife and I plan divided Wherely all points are compromised. Though differences arise with us, Each one of us will yield to the other.

Just what they look like, just what they do or feed upon, we shall never find out —only that we have some flimsy fellow

It must be pretty dark where they live, and there are no plants or weeds, and no fish swimming there, or drowned sailors.

either, from the upper parts, because these are all washed to pieces by the great sermon you delivered this morning was preached by John Wesley more than 100

"Is it possible!" exclaimed the young divinity student, both shocked and grieved. "I found it in a volume of sermons published by the Rev. James Maginnis, and long since out of print. Whom can one trust?"—Chicago Tribune.

A Leap Year Bird.

He dotes on Julia's catkins,
Although a hateful bird,
And when it screeches, it is true,
He can't get in a word.

But still he loves to have it near,
For he is sure to hear
It squawks so loud no one could hear
If Julia should propose.

—Chicago Record.

No Chance Nowadays.

"Young man," said the elderly party with the big watch chain, "I laid the first foundation of my fortune by saving street car fare."

"Didn't know you ever drove one," remarked the flippant youth. "It can be helped in time, shall manage any day."

Born That Way.
There's a confidence man, they say,
Whose patronymic is Kay,
And his friends all claim
He lives up to the name,
The liveliest clown in the world.

OLD GLORY'S PERPETUAL YOUTH.
The Flag at the Capitol Is Often Repaired.

It is a question which no one can answer, What becomes of the flags which fly session after session over the two houses of such a height to the tattering winds naturally cannot be long. Every now and then, after a storm, a gray cloud, such as Old Glory as it proceeds from the house top that our statement are deliberating. Sometimes the edges only are frayed. Sometimes a stripe is gone, or perhaps half the stars may be torn away. Then in a day or two it flies again with all its stripes and its stars, as if it had never suffered by the storm.

I asked what became of the old flag.

A Bit of History.

One day in the middle of September was

What do you do with them?

They are the same flags—that is, there are no new ones. The old flags are simply mended. Old Glory is a patriotic poem in itself. Old Glory has perpetual life—that is, the Old Glory that presides over the capital. When a stripe blows away, a new one is put in its place, and the same old flag is pulled to the head of the staff. If it is the blue field and stars that are gone, they are reproduced. If only a rent, it is darned; if a hole, it is mended. When other stripes go, and a new one is added. So on the old portions are blown away, the newer standing until the new becomes the old in turn and tears away, and in endless revolution the old flag lives on. It is always the same flag, but from year to year its outline (exterior) is changed, and the same old bits are blown away by the winds, and other small bits take their place. There is no graveyard for Old Glory. It has perpetual life. No one can tell when the flag which floats over the senate was bought. It is still a perfect flag, but no part of what was first drawn to the mast-head is now in existence.—Washington Star.

"Old Maids Children"

Theoretical yokes, halters and highways are admirable, but "facts are stubborn things" and will not be harnessed or driven.—

"If the theory does not accord with the facts, the worse for the fact." is the universal position of theorists, however somewhat at loss to know whether he had found his collar button or the soap.—Detroit Tribune.

As He Found It.

With eyes like diamonds, ruby lips
And hair of silver tone,
Ere he was in bed sleeping, so
Her heart's a precious stone.
—New York Herald.

Paint.

"Look at the color in her cheeks. One would almost think she had been drinking."
"Well, I guess she has been painting things red, all right enough."
Presently they drifted apart.—Detroit Tribune.

The New Era.

The brakeman's "All aboard!" ere long
Will be of little worth
When from the air-ship ripens the song,
"Come, all get off the earth!"
—Truth.

Not the Kind Wanted.

Old Millions—Lard Fitzbould offered to exchange his title last night for my daughter's hand.

Tuppenny—Did he ask any more?
Old Millions (significantly): No, but he got it just the same.—Town Topics.

the theory, but in those who attempt to put it into practice. The statement that "old maids' children are perfect" is in-theoretical children have been theoretically trained, but in truth it is a reflection upon ourselves in the fact that our prepressible and frenzied flesh and blood children are not as sweet and lovely and amenable to control as are the offspring of the virgin's gentle thought. How beautifully and amiably have those latter developed under careful training, but what little unmanageable colts and cubs have we produced!

—Dr. Mary Wood-Allen in Womankind.

An Out of Sorts Recital.

This is what the mother of the bishop of

At the Museum.

"I seen that there indiarubber man you got with a side show last summer."
"Excuse me, my friend, but we do not call him the indiarubber man any longer. He is now the human art poster,"—"Cincinnati Enquirer."

The Difference.

Let dogs delight to bark and bite.
It makes you angry, that's their right;
But lambs, when they are thus disgraced,
Don't do a thing but bark.

Tristram.